

KEI Alumni Ambassador Program

You packed your bags, landed in your host country and took in all that your study abroad experience had to offer! Now that you have returned home and are readjusting to your home university, you may be looking for ways to reconnect with and share your study abroad experience, but often find it difficult to find an audience to listen. We recognize that returning home can be overwhelming. You may be graduating soon but not sure of your professional future or just need work experience. Whether you are excited to talk about your experience abroad or looking for ways to further your study abroad experience, KEI's Alumni Ambassador Program gives KEI Alumni who have returned to their home university the opportunity to connect with other KEI Alumni, share their KEI study abroad experience, promote study abroad, and develop skills towards their future and career goals.

Our mission is for Ambassadors to utilize their study abroad experience in outreach on campus and in their community while growing in ways that will transfer to their professional life. Through interactive training, personal guidance from the KEI team, and the use of valuable professional development resources, KEI Ambassadors will be supported and guided throughout the nine-month program. KEI Ambassadors are a group of carefully selected students who are committed, outgoing, socially connected and enthusiastic advocates of study abroad.
